ADVOCATES A NEW RIBLE.

By Professor Smith of Cornell. The Bible of the future will have a very important place in our religious life, but it will not be the Bible of the present. It will be much larger and will contain all of the books that were venerated by the synagogue and early Christian church, many of which have been eliminated. The future Bible will also be newly translated. Some of the present translations are atroclous. There must also the introductory notes and commentaries.

The most important change will be the entirely new wiewpoint in which it will be regarded and a changed estimate of its value, religious and historic. The idea shat the Bible is the sole source of religious knowledge and the standard of faith will fade away. It is prerous to draw a single doctrine from the writings of a hundred different men who had different religious wiewpoints. We want all the books of the Hebrews and Christians, and all of the good in the other religious st be incorporated in it.

MINISTERS AND THEIR USEFULNESS.

By Dr. Charles W. Eliot. Does the ministry nowadays afford a reasonable expectation of service ableness, freedom, and growth? First, let us look at the serviceableness of the ministry.

I dare say most young men who are going into the ministry think of city churches with cultivated audi-A life there is a serviceable life. It is difficult to exaggerate the influence of a competent preacher, It is an enormous opportunity the preacher has in addressing large conregations of intelligent persons each week. Then there is another kind of ministry which I some times think is more attractive than that of the ministry In the city, and that is the ministry in the country where the opportunities for intellectual betterment are Country ministers are frequently the intel lectual leaders of their flocks. This is the function which awaits our young men, particularly where the towns are deserted by the young people for the cities.

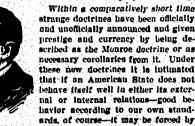

There is another service of the ministry which is frequently noted in American communities. The ethical improvements are the real elements of all civic and soclal improvements. The ethical benefit is the real fundamental benefit and improvement. It is the minister who deals with all those ethical improvements and teaches the community that faith, love and hope are the essentinis. The promotion of peace and the promotion of good will are the great things, and these are the services of the ministry.

The ministry ripens a man; it softens him. It makes him more sympathetic and more loving. Is not that a worthy ambition for any one looking forward to a long intellectual life? It is not strengous, but it is faith and love and helpfolness, and these are the great ethical foundations of life in the community,

ABUSE OF THE MONROE DOCTRINE

By Richard Olney.

the United States and coerced into RICHARD OLNET. doing the right thing, but if necessary may have its rev enue sequestered and applied by the United States according to the latter's notions of justice and equity.

It is too plain for discussion that the Mouroe doctrine cannot be invoked in support of any such pretensions; that they are seriously objectionable as calculated to wound the pride and excite the camity of all other Amertean States and as committing the United States to un dertakings of the most vexations, burdensome and dangerous character.

Our institutions will surely live and our people con tinue to prosper without the United States converting itself into an international pollegman for the American continents or late a debt collecting agency for the benefit of foreign creditor States and their citizens. That the new doctrines, particularly if arged by officials in high places, must have unfortunate tendoucles is clear. They are calculated to put the United States in the odlous position of a possessor of enormous power who is eagerly looking for opoprtunity to exert it.

THE MORTGAGED BRIDE

Hiram Patton had used his credit for no many deals of different kinds that reached the point where none would trust him for a penny. For an unmarried man of the muturer twenties he was exceedingly unfortunate. for ofttimes his trade so languished that he could barely eke out the most meager livelihood. His blacksmith shop was his only hope, and of that the contents alone were his. When a neighboring smith decided to sell out his business-building, contents and allthe chance of a lifetime seemed to have come to Hiram's very shop-door. Mr. Patton exerted himself most he protectly to renew his long since threadthere credit in order to purchase the shop. As a last resort the young man determined to bombard the bank acexample of a crusty old bachelor of the steinity, one Bartimeus Graves, whose reputation for close deals and miserly Tayors was unrivated.

But Hiram was desperate. And, re molving to secure the money on whatever terms might seem necessary, he approached the ill-tempered Bart with rathe blandest smile he could command Bart, on the other hand, was mistrustthat of Hiram Patton and his creditiess exeputation; but an opportunity to loan emoney at good interest was to him nething not to be despised.

After his marriage it was impossible for Hiram to save money. And when Bart Graves appeared at the shop door the day before Christmas, to remind him that the mortgage would full due on the morrow it seemed that a thunderbolt had been burled at him from the clear sky above.

ORIGIN OF CHINESE LILIES.

Story as Told and How the Bulb Brought Good Luck. Very few people who see and admire the beautiful Chinese lilles know the reason why this particular flower is held in such favor in the Orient. This is the story of the origin as told by a Chinaman:

Years and years ago a member of the celestial empire had two wives whom he loved dearly because each had borne him a son. While they were still hads the father died and in settling up the estate some difficulty was encountered, for the man left his heirs two pieces of land, one a strip lying in a fertile and beautiful valler, the other a small ribbon of land bordering the bed of n parrow stream. The former land was known to grow anything the country produced, while the latter was counted utterly worthless.

It was at first proposed that each of the two strips be divided in half and a section of each be given to the two "No; there's the stuff at the house? heirs. But the mothers could not agree upon the division and it was finally arranged that one son should take the rich land, while the other should take the sterile piece.

The valley strip yielded bountiful parvests season after season and the rocky one gave nothing until one day the low owner happened to notice a tiny white, sweet-scented flower bloom ing among the rocks and after a careful study and examination it was found to the only one of its kind in China The flower grew from a bulb and the boy discovered that these bulbs could be transplanted to similar rock soll without destroying their growth.

Soon the bulbs were in great demand and when it was learned that the flowers brought good luck to the owner of the plant the boy had all be could do to supply the market. From the sale of the buibs he grew enormously wealthy, while his brother never made ore than a good living out of his valuable valley property.

The Father of West Point.

George Washington must be given the credit of causing the first steps to be taken toward the founding of a no tional military academy. In 1794, while serving his second term as President, Washington succeeded in having Con gress create the grade of cadet in the army. West Point was chosen as the best army post at which cadets could be trained, for the reason that it was then the most important station of the artillerists and engineers. The cadets of those days did not pass entrance xaminations, and the standard of proficiency in studies did not amount to the tenth part of what is exacted nowadays. A smattering of engineering mathematics and artillery practice was all that was deemed necessary,-St

With all classes of stock if the farmer expects good results he should feed well.

It is not enough that food makes fat it should also impart an agreeable finvor.

It is better to buy a good animal with a poor pedigree than a poor animal with a good pedigree. Some men go out on a moonlight night and cut down a $10 tree to get a 10-cent coon. A great many farmers work on this plan. Did you know that there is good money in geese? The Germans and Jows of our large towns and cities are always good customers for fat geese.

What has become of the old-fashloned farmer, who used to get up at 4 o'clock in the morning, rout all of the animals out of their warm beds to feed, then go back to the house and doze before his fire till daylight?

Asparagus was originally a wild sea coast weed of Great Britain and Rus sia, and is now so plentiful on the Rus sian steppes that the cattle eat it like grass. In some parts of southern Europe the seeds are dried as a substitute for coffee.—Philadelphia Inquirer

A southern Oblo farmer's wife re ports the sale of 100 dozen eggs from 45 Plymouth Rock bens, from Sept. 20 to Dec. 16. Farm range and the feed. refuse corn. These eggs were sold at 26 cents per dozen average, the hens that laid them were worth about 50 cents each and the eggs in less than three months brought almost as much as the liens that laid them.

A correspondent in Rural New Yorker says: "When meat or blood meal, linseed oil (oil cake) or cooked ment s given them in their soft food once day, or when green cut bone is used natend, I believe that barley serves the same purpose for fowls as wheat vould. I use by preference beardless barley. Young chicks will learn to like this very soon. I crack it in the beginning for a few feeks; when 4 weeks old they eat it whole."

Grafting Fruit Trees in Germany. Consul General Richard Guenther, or Frankfort, reports a movement among German fruit growers for the purpose of getting rid of all inferior and medium fruit trees and replacing them with the finest kind and best suited to the climate. A leading fruit-growing and horticultural journal published at Frankfort-on-the-Oder, has devoted a number of essays to the subject, and has shown that the desired result can be achieved, even with very old trees, by grafting, and the simple stock or slit grafting is especially recommended. In Switzerland many thousands of old fruit trees are annually regrafted in ortrade. In the Rhenish Province of Prussia a systematic regrafting of the fruit trees is going on, expert grafters being employed at fixed contract rates.

Acid Solls.

A bulletin issued by the Oregon experiment station summarizes the replies made by eighty farmers in different parts of Oregon to a circular of inquiry sent out by the station regarding the character of the soil of their farms, the principal crops grown, the is passed by the worm, still very minprincipal wild grasses and weeds, and the reaction of the soil as determined by the litmus paper test. Of the eighty tests of soil for acidity made and reported by farmers, 10 per cent showed no acidity, 35 per cent very little acidity, 38.75 per cent considerable acidity, and 16.25 per cent strongly acid. The majority of the tips. extremely acid soils examined in these tests were dark loam, muck, beaver dam or peat, which usually are rather poorly drained. "In a few cases upland sandy, gravelly clay loams have been found to be very acid. A majority of the sandy and clar loams examined possess a considerable degree of neidity.

Two years ago the budget amounted to $7,255,018. Already the also for the fruit. The second spraying appropriations passed this session amount to $4,630,000. To this can be added $1.500,000 for the general purpose tax and a number of large appropriation bills lave yet to be acted upon. It is esti-mated that when the budget is complete it will total about $0,307,000, an advance of $2,100,000, in round numbers, over the budget of 1005. Nearly all the State institutions have received an advance of 25 per cent, the claim being that cost of living has advanced, while they all ask for large sums for new buildings and repairs. There is yet to be disposed of the university tax, and if it is increased to three-claims of a mill, it will amount to three-eights of a mill, it will amount to at least $1,300,000. The College of nt least $1,300,000. The College of Mines wants $250,000, the Michigan Agri-cultural college $450,000, and binder twine plant $175,000. Military Bill O. K. Now. The Senate has finally passed the mili-tary bill as amended by the committee and under the agreement made the House will concur. The year 1816 was known throughout the United States and Europe as the coldest ever experienced by any person then living. There are persons in northrinca living. There are persons in north-ern. New York who have been in the habit of keeping diaries for years, and it is from the pages of an old diary begun in 1810 and kept up unbroken until 1840 that the following information regarding this year without a summer has been

January was so mild that most persons allowed their fires to go out and did not burn wood except for cooking. There were a few cold days, but they were very few. Most of the time the air was warm and springlike. February was not cold. Some days were colder than any in January, but the weather was about the same March, from the 1st to the 6th, was in-clined to be kindy. It came in like a small lion and went out like a very innocent sheep.

April came in warm, but as the days grew longer the nir became colder, and by the first of May there was a temperature like that of winter, with plenty of arure like that of winter, with plenty of anow and ice. In May the young buds were frozen dead, ice formed half an inch thick on pends and rivers, corn was killed, and the cornfields were planted again and again, until it became too late to ruise a crop.

By the last of May in this climate the trees are usually in leaf and birds and flowers are plentiful. When the last of May arrived in 1810 overything had been killed by the cold.

June was the coldest month of roses ever experienced in this latitude. Frost and ice were as common as huttercurusually, are. Almost every green thing was killed; all fruit was destroyed; snow fell ten inches deep in Vermont. There was a seven-inch full in the interior of New York State, and the same in Massachusetts. There were only a few mod-erately warm days. Everybody looked, longed, and waited for warm weather, but warm weather did not come.

It was also dry; very little rain fell.
All summer long the wind blew steadily from the north in blasts, laden with snow and ice. Mothers knit socks of double thickness for their children, and made thick mittens. Planting and shivering were done together, and the farmers who worked out their taxes on the country roads were overcoats and mittens. On June 17 there was a heavy fall of snow. A Vermont farmer sent a flock of sheep to pasture on June 16. The morasheep to pasture on June 16. The morning of the 17th dawned with the thermometer below the freezing point. About O o'clock in the morning the owner of the sheep started to look for his fock. Before leaving home he turned to his wife and said, jokingly;

"Better start the neighbors soon; it's the middle of June, and I may get lost in the snow.

An hour after he had left home a ter rific snow storm came up. The snow fell thick and fast, and as there was so much wind the fleacy masses piled in great drifts along the windward side of the fences and outbuildings. Night came and the farmer had not been heard of.

His wife became frightened and alarm ed the neighborhood. All the neighborhood the searching party. On the third day they found him. He was lying in a hollow on the side hill with both feet frozen; he was laif covered with snow, but alive. Most of the sheep were lost.

Ally course it, with snow and less. On July came in with snow and ice. On the Fourth of July lee as thick as window glass formed throughout New Eng-land, New York, and in some parts of the State of Pennsylvania, Indian corn which in some parts of the East had struggled through May and June, gave up, froze and died. United States Senator, has pleaded guilty. Eugene E. Schmitz, whose sudden rise from poverty to riches has been one of the great political scandals of modern times, has been convicted of extorting some of his wealth from the French restaurant keepers of his home ity. And now the district attorney declares the work of convicting the milllionaire criminals who have made the crimes of Schmitz and Ruef possible will be far easier because of the conviction of the first two malefactors.

The manualty of the jury in the case of Schmitz tells the story of the sentiment in the community concerning graft, brille takers and bribe givers There was no trouble or no struggle to ecure a verdict once the case had been given into the jury's hands. On a preiminary ballot, one juror voted for an acquittal merely to provoke discussion over one point in the judge's charge that he dld not understand and immediately upon a formal ballot being taken the entire twelve jurors voted "guilty as charged."

Mayor Schmitz's Crime. The crime for which Mayor Schmitz was convicted was the extortion of $1,-175 from Delmonico's French restaurant in January, 1904. Just before that time a "morality" crusade was begun against the French restaurants, and licenses were withdrawn for alleged violation of the laws.

Then came a general investigation of these resorts, which resulted in the de-Mayor to force them to close by cancelling their liquor licenses, This meant ruin for most of the proprietors, as they could not operate without the privilege of selling drinks.

After several months of agitation and investigation, it was decided by the "reformers" that all those places that complied with certain rules should be allowed to reopen. Then came the expected applications for licenses from the "reformed" places. These applications were placed on file and in due course were taken up by the police commissioners, but for some reason one of the licenses was granted.

Attorneys appealed in vain to the commissioners and supervisors, but the applications remained on the file. Fin ally the restaurant men made common cause of their cases and raised a fund o hasten the granting of the licenses. Appeal was made to Ruef, who for the consideration of a fee of about $10,000 undertook to secure the licenses,

A new departure in architecture has been made in connection with the four dation work for the 45-story Singer building at New York, which is expected to be the highest structure in the world. According to an article by C. M. These bars are held to-gether by pins 6 inches in diameter, which in turn are joined to the upright steel columns in such a way that th pull from wind strain might be counter-acted. This has never before been done. The law requires that stability of structures be figured upon a wind pressure of 30 pounds per square foot, and on this basis the force exerted against one side of the building would be equal to 830 tons pressure.

DO WE GO TO SLEEP WRONG!

Present Method of Seeking Res Adversely Criticised.

According to W. H. Somersall, a respected and eloquent high light of the theosophists, the present methods of weking sweet repose, as practiced in Yankeedom, are all wrong, says the Hoston Journal, "Going to sleep," says lie, "Is in most cases a crude and almost brutal affair, and yet it might be raised to the dignity of a fine art. Everything done that we can think of, or nothing now offering much interest, we termination of the supervisors and hurl ourselves into the bed and let go. Between the voluntary letting-goes and enforced resumptions lies a third of life—which third is to most of us spiritually valueless."

We are not prepared at this moment to contradict Mr. Somersall, for to tell the unvarnished truth we do not know how we go to sleep. We simply find, upon being aroused by the heavy boots of the gentleman above our head, that time has passed, that it is light and that presumably we have been asleep. Whether this going to sleep was a brutal affair or not, accompanied by sounds that suggest the porcine animal, we are in blissful ignorance. So, we presume, are most of our brethren. Why not let it go at that?

But theosophy, we find upon further xamination, has a remedy for this commonning and almost vulgar method of wooing old Morpheus. We are told that "the mind should, the last thing, be emptied, prepared, raised, cleared, spiritualized by a final meditation, a final strain of aspiration, kept up for some few minutes. The dust of the day should be swept away, memory stilled. Thus prepared, it will stay dreamless, sleep becomes a long meditation, and in the morning when the soul returns it can at the transit into reincarnation impress suddenly the awakening mind some of its idea-

That's it. That's what we have all long waited for—the ideation of the morning. For the most part, it has previously been a mere returning to the onsclousness that one must recover energy enough to emerge from under the clothes, only to go through the old weary routine of soap and water, toothbrush and powder. If there is any joy that theosophy can give to take the place of coming back to the usual grind, then we say all hall to it and let us have the cure at once. The trouble with most of us we fear, in following Mr. Somersall's method would be that final "strain of aspiration" before going to sleep generally becomes the old wres tling with the problem of how to cap-ture a few more of the mighty dollars on the day that is to come. If theosophy can eradicate from our beings gross and sordld thoughts of this sort it will really do a service to mankind.

A lady in Sallabury, Md., says that she was compelled to abandon the use of coffee a good many years ago, because it threatened to ruin her health and that she went ver to tea drinking, but finally, she had dyspensia so had that she had lost twenty-five pounds and no food seemed to agree with her.

Truly the work of such a woman is "never done" and is it any wonder that she breaks down at the end of a few years, the back begins to ache, there is a displacement, inflammation or ulceration of the abdominal organs. a female weakness is brought on, and the struggle of that wife and mother to continue her duties is pitiful.

Forests are Healthful.

One of the great uses of living trees is to make the locality in which they grow more healthful. All trees conpurifying the water in that locality. Trees also absorb poisonous gases in the air. One of the greatest menaces to civilization is dust. A re-port on such examinations is sent to the parents, who are asked to send their chil-dren to the school dental clinic for free treatment. Those children having ten or nore noor teeth are first treated, an exception being made in the higher classes where those with only slight defects are to be treated, so that they will leave the public schools with sound tooth. After these worst cases have been attended to, all other children with defective teeth are to be treated, the younger ones given pref-erence. The treatment of the teeth in-cludes extraction, filling, crowning, etc. There is no actual instruction in dental hygiene, but at the opening of the dental linic the teachers explain its objects and workings to the children. NO EXPORT WHEAT.

GOVERNMENT REPORT SHOWS DECREASED YIELD.

Barely Enough for Home Consu tion-Indicated Total Crop 616, Bushels - 365,529,00 Winter, 248,064,000 spring.

Official figures given out by the government indicate that America will have little, if any, wheat to spare for export even if there are no further setbacks for the winter wheat crop, and providing also that the spring wheat crop has an unbroken line of good fortune until harvest. At the present stutus the neces-sary supply and demand seems about at even poise, where a little hadding back by the American farmer will create stringency and where a little extra rapid marketing will make the stringency less pronounced. If each farmer should de cide to hold even a small percentage mor than usual in reserve it would be possible to bring about a very pronounced effect on the markets of this country and perhaps throughout the world.

The total indicated wheat crop is 610, 593,000 bushels, of which 308,529,000 bushels are winter and 248,004,000 bush els are spring wheat. The total wheat crop last year was 735,000,000 bushels of which 402,000,000 bushels were winter and 243,000 bushels spring.

Both winter and spring wheat yields promise just a trifle below the average yields of the last ten years, a condition that would not be noteworthy were the population and per capita consumption of wheat flour stationary, but which resolved itself into a gigantic problem when it is seen that the population has increased enormously in this ten-year period, while the wheat production is now falling back. Based on Old Acreage.

It is, of course, recognized that there are some important points to clear up The government has made no revision of its acreage since the official announce-ment of abandoned acreage a mouth ago Future reports must take note of the large abandoned area in Kansas. The State authorities assert that 21 per cent of the area has been plowed up. As Kansas represents over 20 per cent of the entire wheat area, this loss is not triffing.

Evidently the government has take note of the lateness of seeding of the spring wheat crop, as the condition gives 4.7 lower than that of a year ago and 4.6 per cent below the average of the last ten years. With perfect conditions to harvest the spring wheat crop, therefore might be able to furnish an offset to the Principal changes in winter wheat con

Principal changes in winter wheat condition in large producing States in the last month include losses of 22 points in Kansas, 12 points in Odahoma, 14 points in Nebraska and 4 points in California. There were gains of 4 points in Indiana and of 3 in Ohio, as well as 1 each in Illinois and Texas. The winter wheat condition reported is 5.5 per cent lower than in May and 3.7 per cent below a tenance of several conditions. en-year average.

The report says that preliminary re turns on the acreage of spring wheat sown indicate an area of about 16,464,000 acres, a decrease of 1,242,000 neres, or 7 per cent, as compared with the final estimate of the acreage sown last year (17,706,000).

The average condition of spring wheat on June 1 was SS.7, as compared with 93.4 at the corresponding date last year, 93.7 on June 1, 1905, and a ten-year average of 93.3.

STATISTICS OF PNEUMONIA.

Census Shows It Next to Teberculeals in Number of Patalities. The latest federal statistics, covering the year 1004, show that pneumonia stood next to tuberculosis in the number of its fatalities. During that year 45,000 Americans died of pneumonia, and since ther it is regarded as probable that the death rate has been on the increase from this cause. As 75 per cent of the persons auffering from pneumonia recover, it is apparent that there are about 180,000 cases of the disease in this country each year, and those who once have it are thereafter disposed to further attacks. liffering in this respect from smallpox and some other forms of virulent disease which leave immunity behind them.

The most approved treatment for pn monia now, according to the official re-port on the disease, includes the placing of the patient in a bright room, with plenty of outdoor air circulating, and the application of water externally and inter-nally, with such simple diet as milk, eggs, rice and broth. Many physicians employ-ice packs on the chest and head. All ice packs on the chest and head. Al otherwise, must make the fight against the pneumococcus germ. The disease is found to run a regular course, and noth ing can be done to hurry or hinder its progress, which is from three to seven days after the attack on the lungs. In the old days pneumonia patients imprisoned in hot, close rooms and dope with whisky and powerful drugs, but all that is now done away with by the best physicians. It is found that the conditions which favor the approach of pneu-nonia are chills, lack of sleep, overviolent exorcise, over-enting, and particularly in-dulgence in alcoholic beverages. Scientific experiment confirms the common ex perience that the man who drinks is a brighter mark for pneumonia than the one who does not.

Minnesota's New Social Laws.

A number of progressive laws touchin the defective and dependent classes were enacted by the recent Minnesota Legisla-ture. For the insane, detention hospitals were ordered where a period of special expert examination may be laid before patients are committed to the regular asy-lums. A State beard of visitors was cre-ated to inspect all public institutions. Another law establishes an industrial school for girls. Punishment for the parents who by neglect contribute to the depen-dency or delinquency of their children is provided in still another act. The juve nile courts are extended and the proba-tion laws are made more effective. A hospital farm for inobriates is established and it is forbidden to send grunkards to prison for the first offense. Other laws dren, render more effective the child labor laws, provide a woman factory inspector, cultarge the scope of the bureau of labor and change its name to the bureau of labor and commerce, establish free publi employment bureaus in St. Paul and Du hith, as well as in Minneapolis, open the way for the erection of public baths in all cities having from 20,000 to 50,000 population and limiting the number of State prisoners that may be employed at one oc cupation.

Senator Quny is credited with a sinis-ter prophecy in connection with the build ing of the new capitol in his State. CHICAGO.

The recent heaviness which partially epressed activity in distributive lines has disolved under the encouraging in-fluence of brighter weather, and busi-ness is characterized by a cheering tone. Local demands equal expectations principal industries, manufacturing sus-tains a strong position and the demand for seasonable merchandise gives a forward impetus to retail operations. Interior advices testify to high consumption and a satisfactory depletion of stock. Payments through the banks still largely exceed those of a year ago, and, with the purchasing power throughout the West evidently greater than at any time hitherto, it is difficult to find a sound reason for apprehending any immediate dimini-tion of commerce. It is significant that many visiting buyers from distant points attend wholesale markets for staple goods and that road salesmen obtain substantial or-ders for fall deliveries, the volume of bookings thus far making favorable comparison with that at this time last year. Mercantile collections at some points are better than in the early spring, and in this district remain remarkably prompt, while the defaults show much under the normal average.

NEW YORK.

Weather, crop and retail trade conditions over a wide area of country have changed for the better this week and the feeling is more optimistic than for some months past. In the Northwest, parts of the central West and in some sections of the South higher temperatures have en-couraged freer buying of summer goods and made for more cheerful advices as to the wheat and cotton crops. Agreement is general that retailers' stocks the country over are large, that reduction sales are numerous, and that filling in orders from jobbers and manufacturers are a negligible quantity as yet. It is noted that fall trade reports are good in most sections, in a few being in advance of a year ago, but there are, coincidentally, a few reports of inncellations of business booked, mainly in the Southwest, or requests for the withholding of ship ments, and for extensions on payments on storm energy. It is the most destructive and the most sudden in appearance of all forms of atmospheric disturbance, and is least easily recognised in its early stages, even by the expert. A torundo and an electric storm arise from the same general conditions, and in the beginning cannot be distinguished one from the other. They often are identical up to a certain point and are deflected into the one or the other by local conditions with which the general cyclonic storm comes in contact in its passage from one point to another.

Edward H Rowle chief of the St. wenther bureau, has made a special study of the subject of tornadoes and is in a position to speak with authority regarding them,

"I think," said he, "It would be well to bring out one point in the beginning of this subject, and that is the difference between tornadoes and cyclones. The sort of windstorm that is popularly called a cyclone is not a cyclone at all, but is a torando. tornado is the storm that makes its appearance in the form of a funnelshaped cloud, while the cyclone is a general storm, or an area of barometric pressure. The word cyclone means a revolving wind, it is true, and a cyclone is a revolving wind, revolution covers a much greater area than that of the so-called 'twisters,' or tornadoes. A cyclone may be a thousand uitles in diameter, while tornado may not be more than a bundred feet.

THE CYCLONE.

The cyclone is the parent of the tornado. It is the general condition that produces the tornado. There is always a cyclone somewhere in the Unit-States. Without It this country. would dry up, for the evelones bring us our rains. If on examine a weather map you will see certain sections These are the areas of low pressure, the storm centers or cyand if you will look further you will find that all the little arrows which show the direction of the windin the different localities around this low region point in a direction generally slanting toward the center of the area marked 'low,' circling from right to left, or opposite to the hands of a That means that the equilibrium of the atmosphere is disturbed. but not violently, and that the motion is in a generally rotary direction, but horizontal rather than vertical. These storm centers move across the country from day to day, in a generally northeasterly direction, and the atmospheric conditions which they encounter enlent storms of one kind or another. Sometimes it is a severe thunderstorm and sometimes it is a tornado. These storm centers, or eyelones, extend over large areas, varying from 500 or 400 miles to a thousand or more miles in

WHERE TORNADOES ORIGINATE.

Tornadoes always originate in the southeast quadrant of these areas of low pressure, usually due southeast of the center at a distance of from 200 to 205 miles, and they, like the parent cyclone, travel in a generally northeasterly direction.

"The tornado travels ten or a hunared miles, and is dissipated in a few hours, while a cyclone may travel for days and cover thousands of miles of territory in its progress. The Gaives ton hurricane is an instance of this. That storm was first observed southeast of the Island of Porto Rico on September 1. It moved westwardly with the general drift of the air, was deflected from its normal churse un the Atlantic const by a bank of cold air over the castern States, and on September 10 was in northern Texas. It then recurved toward the northeast. ussed over the great lakes and the St Lawrence valley as a storm of marked intensity and was dissipated somewhere off the coast of Canada. A hurricane is an intensified exclone.

"A tornado is caused by a very unstable local condition of the atmos phere. The warm, moist air rises and comes in contact with the descending cold stream of air above. Breaking through this cold stratum, it rushes into the opening, and the heavy, cold air rushes down to fill the space formerly occupied by the heated air, pro-

OUR GLOBE'S CAPACITY.

The Time When the Earth Will Be Fully Peopled.

Professor Ravenstein of the Royal Giographical Society estimates that the fertile lands of the globe amount to 28,000,000 square miles, the steppes to 14,000,000 and the deserts to 1,000,-

Fixing 207 persons to the square mile for fertile lands, ten for stennes and one for deserts as the greatest population that the earth could properly nourish, the professor arrives at the onelusion that when the number of inhabitants reaches about 6,000,000. 000 the earth will be peopled to its full capacity. At present it contains some what more than one-quarter of that number.

If the rate of increase shown by the latest census statistics should be uniformly maintained. Professor Ravenstein shows that the globe would be fully peopled about the year 2072 .-New York Tribune.

THE UNSEEN HAND.

By Henry F. Cope "The sword of the Lord and of Gid on."-Judges vii. 20.

The mightlest and the eternal forces fight over on the side of the right. True, things do not always look that way. Sometimes Napoleon's sneer about God always being on the side of the largest battalious seems to have truth in it. But ere long we see the large battallous swept away before the strange, unaccountable, and irresistible power of an insignificant body having truth and God on its side.

The man who takes up the struggle for truth, who puts his hand to the sword for the oppressed, for the right, finds himself holding a two-handled weapon, and if he grasps firmly the one lillt it is as though there were an omnipotent hand grasping the other He who fights worthily, in fitting battle, never fights alone. Often he may seem to stand with none to aid, but one mightler than he is with him.

It is not that some omnipotent per on steps down from a throne in the heavens and plunges into the battle; it is that every time a man steps out for right and truth he places himself in accord with eternal spiritual forces that give themselves to him and his work. It is not that God comes to fight for a man so much as that a man finds himself fighting beside God; entering this battle, he sees that where b thought none had been serving the heavens had long been waging the contest.

It is so easy, like old Elljah, to think that you alone are left to witness for truth, to feel the loneliness of standing for things noble and worthy, to becom oppressed with the hopelessness of the minority in which you find yourself. When real and concrete things press upon us and their uproar is in our ears we become deaf and blind to the greater forces that from the beginning of time have been working for the

Every great reform has looked like a losing movement; it has begun with most insignificant influorities; it has met with violent and well organized opposition; its supporters have often been faint-hearted, and yet ultimately it has overcome always. As men have fought on they have found an unseen hand grasping the sword beside theirs.

We all need this sense of God with us, helping us in our lives. This gives courage and confidence. It does not mean weak reliance upon beaven to do things for us; it means entering on the things that look impossible because we know that, if they are right, every great force in the universe will co-op rate with us.

This is the fine sense in which th human enters into partnership with the divine. This determines whether we may call our work divine or not. It is to be judged, not by whether it is leasant or looks respectable, but by whether it is the work in which we now the Lord of all can lay his hand to the tool or weapon alongside of our

With a consciousness like this, one can attempt anything; nothing is longer impossible. The practical question is not, "can this be done?" but "ought this to be done?" Is it such a task eternal spirit of truth and right? With the cry of Gideon on their lips, men fored forth facing fearful odds: their hands have fallen from their words, but the unseen hand has carried them on until the cause is won,

God's work raite for you to nut you sword; you will find his already there.

This helping hand is always unseen spiritual things are strange, indefinite. and often apparently unreal. God cannot he reduced to figures nor to material lements. This hand that works with ours may mean one thing to one and another to another. What we all need is to simply grasp the great fact of the spiritual forces that strengthen every good resolve, that give vigor in every good work, and give victory at last to

WHAT IS HELL?

By Rev. Russell H. Conwell,D. D. Text.—"And in hell he lifted up his eyes."—Luke xvi., 23.

There is a vast difference of opinion concerning this awful state of flery torment about which I read in this sixteenth chapter of Luke. But whatever the difference of mere opinion may be, the awful fact will ever remain the same. My opinion may be an error: your opinion may be an error; but one thing is sure, namely, that as we live. my friends, this is a very important matter, about which we need to be vastly important: it is an esesutial truth, and you and I should be right about it.

You may eas. "I don't believe in hell." But, ab, your belief would not abolish it. Your disbellef would not quench its unquenchable flame; your desire will not make that hell disappear when, if unrepentant and in wickedness, you pass on into that beyond for judgment. Nay, the fact will be there. The illustration is often used f men going down the Nisgara River to the falls. They may think there is they may not hear the roar of the falls; they may be engaged in absorbing sports; yet they are pearing the awful precipice, and their dishelled in a fall will not preyear their going over to destruction when they reach the brink of the precipics. Your belief will not save you from future punishment, if it be a fact; your district will not mave you from it if it be an eternal verity Our minds are limited, and if w think of God, the Mighty Spirit, who rules the universe, doing something so unjust as giving high Heaven to the wicked murderer, just the same as He gives it to the purest of earth, with has given His life for the good of His fel-low men, how inconsistent that idea would be! You must know that it is not true; your hearts tell you that it is not true. God, the Almighty God, cannot do that, No. Justice demands that the good shall be loved and the evil linted. We recognize that if the good are to be rewarded, there must be a heaven; and if there is a heaven there must necessarily be a hell. Be cause heaven is the opposite of hell. ns good is the opposite of evil, as light is the opposite of darkness.

MORAL COURAGE NEEDED.

By Rev. William M. Grosvenor And David said unto Saul, I cannot go with these, for I have not proved them. And he took his staff in his hand and chose him five smooth stones out of the brook and put them in a shepherd's hag which he had, even in a serin and his sling was in his hand; and he drow near to the Philistine.—I. Samuel xvii.. 39-40.

Thus early in his career did David the shepherd boy assert the distinguish ing quality of his life. He must be nimself. He was gracious, tactful ready to try means which other people wanted him to use. He was willing to put on Saul's armor. He was always humble, ready to acknowledge his faults, willing to receive advice, but the one clear note which he always struck, a note with the ring of a true coin, was sincerity. When it comes to battle he must have his own oft used weapons; he must fight his own

All of us are sinners; all of us have our faults, but we venture to say that for all of us to-day there is one cleancut distinction that always remains in our moral and intellectual judgment of men-do they ring true? When we say, "That man is square; he means what he says; you can trust him," how that covers a multitude of sins.

He holds opinions with which we utterly disagree, but we say he is sincere and we respect him. He is stupid, uninteresting, narrow, but he is honest, and we gladly tolerate him. He has many faults; he is weak in will, per haps intemperate, perhaps sensual swept on by forces of evil that have overwhelmed him, but he fights against them and is honest and manly and brave, and his words and deeds are full of good meaning, and we forgive him and love to help him. He is irrit able and cursed with an unfortunate manner; he is tactless and blundering. but he is as trustworthy as time and as straight as an arrow, and we be

He may feed the poor and build hospitals and colleges and churches and libraries, and yet, when we know, or even imagine that we know, that he has oppressed the poor and been hard as filnt and strugy and unmerciful to all those who worked for him or dealt with him, no amount of explanation will ever redeem his one irreparable fault.

There is something very remarkable about our Lord's discrimination be-tween men. He has compassion on the multitudes: He is most sympathetic with physical suffering; He is most merciful and tender with sinners and outcasts. He is most tolerant with honest debtors. He takes into the wide embrace of Hls arms outstretched upon the cross, the whole tragic life of the sin-sick world, but He turns with almost savage fury on that mental and moral insincerity which made many of the leading classes of His own day children of the devil. He seems to say. be true to yourself; bring better ideals into your life.

It is that kind of manhood, simple, frank, open, true to Itself, that alone will save our politics and our society from the demoralization of its unreali-

What we need supremely to-day is moral courage. Thousands of young men and women would be saved from moral ruin if they are only brave enough to be true to themselves and the real conviction of their hearts. If we know that gambling, intemperance, sensuality are dragging us down, the first step to victory is to fling compro mise and all excuses aside and speak out frankly to our friends. If we think a thing is wrong, let us boldy say so, and then there will come to us the larger courage to go on and win a greater victory.

THE NAME "SUNDAY."

By Bishop Fallows The Sunday problem is both grave and complicated. The very term Sunday indicates the worship of the Sun right. It is not unimportant; it is and the observance of his day by the great pagan nations of antiquity. The name was used as the Christian day of rest by the well-known edict Constantine the Great. Objection has been made to the name on account of its pagan paternity, but we might as well object to the names of Monday, Tuesday and all the rest of the days of the week, which are equally pagan.

One day in seven has been well-nigh universally regarded throughout the ages. The law given on Sinal simply emphasised the importance of the law which God himself had written in the physical, mental and spiritual constitution of man. It becomes a matter of little moment whether the seventh day or the first day of the week shall be observed as the Sabbath or Sunday.

'Yes; I know all about it; we've only to get to Bourgette, and then it's quite easy,' she said confidently.

A carriage was secured, the morn ing was lovely, and the French fron was soon passed, for we had very little luggage, and nothing on which to pay duty. A few miles fur-ther, at a lonely kind of an inn, the coachman insisted on our descending from the carriage and paying his fee. Having no choice, we consented, and then entered into the lonely little inn in search of breakfast. After eating with good appetites some well-cooked we discovered that the carriage had been replaced by a couple of rough ponies, with even rougher at-tendants of the boy tribe. The road beyond was considered too steep for vehicles, so we mounted in silence

"Please, our bags," pleaded I, feel ing disturbed by our landlord's smiling detention of our light luggage. "He says they must be sent on by the mule train," exclaimed Lady

The straps of her pony's saddle broke before we had gone a mile and had to be mended with a fragment of string, and a good deal of "language," which we fortunately could not com-prehead, was leveled at the fourlegged members of the party. Then our little cavalcade proceeded onward and upward, passing by many wayside crosses, and encountering wild-looking harmless peasants with trains of mules, and then again we noticed more of the rough crosses.

"What in the world makes the peo ple put up so many wooden crosses?" saked Lady Jane at last, looking rather nervous. You must know that, although she was our own aunt, we gen erally called her Lady Jane. She was very hind, but rather odd.

The boy managed to make as under-stand that the crosses were erected to mark spots where murders had been committed, but of course, we didn't know if this was true.

Higher and higher we wound, zig-zagging through the glorious forest, and steeper and steeper grew the road. The boys walked on silent and sullen, and the sun began to quite scoren our skins. Suddenly the ponies stopped at the summit of the moun tain, and the boys pointed to some far distant buildings. Without a word they lifted us from our saddles, de manded the promised fees, which on their return journey before we had sathered courage to protest. "I've nut the water jug ready throw at any intruder," said Lady Jane, who appeared brave now she was under the bedclothes, "and I've hidden my purse in the toe of my

At last we both slept, and the last sound we heard was the wind wailing round the thick stone walls.

A knock at the door disturbed but failed to arouse us. Then, to the accompaniment of a muttered exclamation, the latch was lifted softly and the door pushed gently. With an awful clatter the barricade gave way and out of the darkness ejaculations loud and deep reached our ears.

"I've got the jug," said my aunt and feeling no doubt that her courage equaled that of Nelson at least, she sprang up and, in the dark, cast her pitcher in the direction of the voice.

Oh, what a crash there was! hurried footsteps came along the pas sage, and a lantern showed the innkeeper fully dressed and his wife in a wondrous deshabilie. The worthy couple, scoiding and questioning turn, soon rescued from amidst scattered chair legs and fragments of pota poor half-drowned wholly frightened young man.

It was the honest Boots of the establishment, the general factotum, who, according to orders, had come to warn us that the omnibus, which was known as the Mail, would arrive in half an hour, and the driver would wait for nobody.

Oh, guess, how foolish we felt! Lady Jane gave the Boots a handsome present, and he said he hadn't been hart, only his clothes were drenched through, and he had a great fright. I expect he thought we were crasy, and really at the time he wasn't far TALK AS MUCH AS EVER.

Man Thinks 'Phone Has improved Con-versational Powers.

"A count in the indictment against this businesslike age," said the doctor "is that the art of conversation is dying out. I wish respectfully to submit that one of our modern institutions effectually prevents any such catastrophe, if catastrophe it be. I refer to the telephone and its use. I have learned by experience that people not only say a good many disagreeable things over the telephone that they wouldn't say if they were face to face with you, but also that the telephone gives a flip to ordinary conversational powers quite amazing in its results. The detailed statement of symptoms over the telephone is something with which every physician is familiar, and there are patients of a certain mental makeup very apt to diverge easily into general remarks which, however valuable in themselves are singularly de void of professional interest. I shudder to think what such persons have to offer in the way of talk when they go to the telephone for purely social purposes. Judging from the difficulty I have frequently in getting the wire I should surmise that we live in a net work of society telephone calls—all well enough in their way, but not sup porting the hypothesis that as a peo ple we are suffering from dumbness.

Actor Not so Gallant as the Fair Ones Had Expected.

A well-known American actor, who is old enough not to consider himself a matinee idol by any means, was somewhat surprised and pleased in a St. Louis hotel a short time ago, when a pretty girl stopped him in the co. r. dor and presented him with a rose, without saying a word. He was more surprised and less pleased to receive a note the following day reminding him of the incident, and asking him to send the giver of the flower two seats at the theater in which he was playing "as a memento of the occasion."

'My dear young lady," the actor re plied, waxing sarcastic as he realized what had been the object of the attention he had been paid, "I would be glad to send you the seats you ask for, but, on consultation with the man ager of the theater, I have been in formed that the seats are all fastened ing them sent away as souvenirs in any event, so that you will have to be contented with an autograph for a ouvenir of your benevolence of ves terday instead."-Montreal Herald.

The following story is told in Paris of a village priest and a mayor: In a village in the department of the Ain the cure was his own church warden. For want of money the church was abandoned, and for many days the villagers heard no Angelus when work-ing in the fields at daybreak, at noon, and in the evening. The mayor, a re tired gendarme, an ardena radical, missed the cure and the chimes as much as any other villager, and when
